U.K. Railways Launch Attack Against Nationalization Plan

Police Wave Clubs At Movie Strikers

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—Police riot squads, wearing night sticks, charged a mob through massed pickets outside the Technicolor laboratory Friday in renewed effort to break movie labor violence. Two pickets were injured and 18 including three women, were booked for parading without a permit and disturbing the peace.

It brought the total arrests in the three-week dispute between two rival A. F. L. unions to 106. More than 40 have been injured in clashes between police, pickets and movie workers. The police have been through the lines—none critically.

'Terror Ship' Crew Appears in Court

VANCOUVER, (CP)—Twenty-five crew members of the freighter Wahine, arrested here Thursday on the ship's arrival from Auckland, N.Z., were remanded to Oct. 15 when arraigned in court Friday.

The men were charged with fully disobeying commands of officers while docked at Auckland. The trip here was described as "a voyage of terror" with fat fighters, officers and men, of officers being threatened by knife-wielders and of armed crew members on deck.

LONDON—Britain's railways unlimbered their anti-nationalization guns Saturday to fire from state control of the lines.

In a pamphlet called "Railways and the Future," the major operating companies issued a demand for a public inquiry into the advisability of nationalization of railways and contended that state ownership and operation of lines would be "disastrous."

At the same time, counter-proposals were set forth on behalf of the railways by the new, newly elected, chairman of London and Northwestern Railway, who outlined a plan described as a "landlord and tenant" arrangement, which might in the end turn out to be a compromise solution.

Under the latter scheme, the government would buy the fixed assets of the lines, such as land, buildings and tracks, required for operation of railway traffic. These would then be rented by the companies on long leases.

Building stock would remain the property of the companies who would continue to operate the lines. Payment for assets would be in the form of government stock carrying a fixed rate of interest.

Doance of the plan would be that large sums required for re-equipment would be put up by the government, which would then have a substantial interest in the railways. In the meantime, of course, expenditure and in the general policy of the improvement of railway facilities.

At the same time, the individuality of the four main line companies would be retained. Their capital structure would remain unaltered, except for the establishment of a new railway which would be added ahead of existing debt stocks.

The railway pamphlet, which had a favorable reaction in the press Saturday, raised a twofold question: whether the plan would be a step toward nationalization, at least at present.

Under the plan much must be done to repair, reconstruct and improve railways, rolling stock and services generally, at this time for experimenting with state ownership.

2. Seeing that the government recognized in 1939 that many statutory regulations imposed upon railways were injurious to them, why not deal with that practical problem now and put them under an equal treatment with other forms of transport?

It is certain that the railway arguments will provide a hot debate in parliament, considering the nationalization scheme at the end of next month. The plan also observes their campaign against state ownership seemed rather to have been a stab in the back of the plan.

The men, picked for their fearlessness from throughout the country, banded together under the leadership of Capt. Charles Gordon Sprague, a 40-year-old British master, ex-fighter pilot and former gun-runner to form a projecting company called the "Anglo-American Pioneer."

Purpose of the company, composed of an equal number of American and British nationals, is to penetrate the Brazilian jungle in search of gold and silver subject to that country's permission.

Capt. Sprague said. According to the captain, two ships, 14 American and 14 British will take part in the attempt to conquer the jungle.

Capt. Sprague said equipment never before used in an expedition of this kind—a helicopter, bulldozers and tractors—will be employed to invade the dense jungle and amphibious vehicles will be used to overcome the treacherous swamps. Members of the party are all former commandos, fighter pilots and merchant navy men who have become accustomed to danger.

The party will be equipped in just 12 years in the jungles. Each man has put up $500 ($4,000) in for his share in the adventure. All members have made their wills but the provisions of their contracts provide that they can drop out of the venture if they first offer their share to one of their fellow-men.

Cost of the expedition is to be covered by taxes and shark fishing on a commercial basis and a portion of proceeds is to be paid for maintenance of the shore party.

Brazilian Students Effective In Combatting Black Market

By Ernie Hill

RIO DE JANEIRO—University students have worked on a slapping formula for bringing the black market down on black-market operators here in Brazil's capital. They are knocking them out of business.

With bread selling up to 30 cents a loaf, canned asparagus, a tin can and carrots up to five cents each, the Brazilian National Student Union decided that action was needed so the students took matters in their own hands.

About 200 students got together and established a headquarters. Through the newspapers, they asked shopkeepers to come to them and report prices in excess of cost.

Now, everything one appears the show begins. And the formula has proved foolproof. The system is as follows: a student goes to the same store and buys an item for profit up to 100 percent.

A student goes to the same store and buys an item for profit up to 100 percent. A student goes to the same store and buys an item for profit up to 100 percent.

Objects to Rush At Peace Parley

PARIS, (CP)—Briefly summing up his general views of the peace conference, Health Minister Brookes Chastan said Friday "there is too much of a rush at the end" and although a great amount of work has been done the time is too brief "to deal adequately" with the five treaties in three languages—English, French and Russian.

In an interview the head of the Canadian delegation said the Paris conference was ending in 15 major ways differed from the Paris conference of 1919 at which Canada was represented by a delegation headed by Sir Robert Borden.

This time the middle and smaller powers, along with every country, were invited to the conference. This time, too, matters at the conference were going on for 28 hours continuously.

But this conference also was different in that overhauling the conference was the same pattern as was shown in the vote—a division between east and west—between the Slav bloc and the others," said Chastan.

"There were unnecessary fights about procedure in which we did not agree. There was some delay. There was much too much of a rush at the end with one session going on for 28 hours continuously. Agreement on some points was not reached."

But, Mr. Chastan continued, it should be remembered that this is a conference not to draft peace treaties, but to make recommendations to the Big Four whose responsibility it was to draft the final treaties.

"Within these terms of reference the conference has accomplished a great amount of work in a time that was too short to deal adequately with five treaties in three languages. Numerous improvements in the draft text, perhaps hundreds of them, have been suggested. The council of foreign ministers have thus charged themselves with the responsibility of making the final decisions."

Most Canadians are Happy; Money Tops List of Reasons

By Canadian Institute of Public Opinion
TORONTO — A questionnaire called "Canadians' 'This happy breed of men', but if he'd been speaking of Canadians, he would only have been 87 percent correct.

In a typical week, 13 out of every hundred Canadians interviewed in a "Canops" referendum described themselves as something less than "fairly happy".

Interestingly enough, this 13 percent was more apt to define happiness in terms of money than were the remaining 87 percent, who were at least "fairly happy".

By using the theory or fact that money has nothing to do with happiness is the other fact that most Canadians in the middle and upper income groups seem to think they are at least fairly happy than do Canadians in the lower income brackets.

Built for all this are two questions put to an accurate sample of adult Canadians by the Canadian Institute. As a start, this miniature population was asked:

"In General, How Happy Would You Say You Are—Very Happy, Fairly Happy, or Not Very Happy?"

A few interviewees volunteered a fourth alternative—"Not happy at all." Here is the national picture:

Very happy	32%
Fairly happy	55%
Not very happy	13%
Not happy at all	3%

The results show that your chances of being happy are greater if you are in the middle income group, between the ages of 21 and 39 years, living in a town of over 10,000 population, married, with one child. It would help slightly if you lived either in Ontario, the maritimes, or on the prairies.

Your chances of being happy are least if you are in the lower income bracket, under 21 years of age, living in a city of over 100,000 population, widowed or divorced.

Your sex has nothing to do with it, as women and men are equally happy or unhappy.

Everyone in the sample was then asked:

"Will You Tell Me In Your Own Words What The Word 'Happiness' Means To You?"

To the largest single group of Canadians, happiness means mainly "sufficient money" spiritual or health factors getting only second or any consideration. Here is the record:

Define happiness in terms of:	Percentage
Sufficient money	38%
Contentment	22%
Family life	19%
Health	18%
Friends	7%
Security	7%
Living in a free country	3%
Religion	2%
No answer	2%

Most of the answers about to add more than 100 percent because some people, miscellaneous answers include general answers such as "everything" and "to a few happiness means time for hobbies and relaxation. One veteran describes himself as very happy because that happiness meant "being one of the best people in the world."

To a young lady on the Pacific coast, happiness was "a tickle in the heart around the heart."

A large number of those who said they were not happy, asked how any one could be in the face of world events today. But the largest number of those who were fairly, or very happy, thought in terms of the individual contentment, or family life.

Substantially increased acreage and above-average yields have produced a commercial sugar beet crop of 70,000 tons, 8,000 tons above the 1940 output and the largest production since 1942. Yields varied little this year as compared with last and the jump in production is directly attributable to increased acreage.

Although little change was apparent in the production figures for Alberta this year, a crop of 30,000 tons accounted for more than half the Canadian total.

OTTAWA, (CP)—Canada's 1946 potato crop was estimated Friday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 47,000,000 hundredweight, compared with 36,000,000 hundredweight last year and 40,000,000 hundredweight in 1944.

Quebec and Manitoba were the only provinces in which the 1946 averages declined below those of a year ago and Manitoba was the only province to indicate a lower production this year. New Brunswick potatoes outyielded all other provinces with a per acre return of 136 hundredweight.

May Abolish Death Penalty For Test Period in Britain

By James McQuinn
LONDON (CP) - Abolition of the death penalty for a trial period of one year is the proposal of a bill introduced by Home Secretary Sir James Macdonald in the House of Commons today.

The bill, which would abolish the death penalty for all crimes except murder, is expected to be introduced in the House of Commons today.

Parliamentary changes are proposed and the treatment of young offenders is also included in a detailed report prepared by a Conservative party committee on this subject.

The report recommends that the existing power of courts to order boys under 14 to be whipped should be abolished and that imprisonment as a punishment for persons under 21 be replaced by new forms of institutional treatment.

Agree to Trial Period
Mr. Macdonald has examined reform proposals forwarded by the War by a Conservative predecessor, Sir James Macdonald, now Lord Templewood. These were not put into effect because of war conditions and probably will be introduced in the legislation.

Mr. Macdonald is understood to have favored total abolition of the death penalty but was ready to admit this might lead to an alarming increase in crime of violence and agreed to a trial period. If violence does not increase the new legislation can be made permanent.

The bill would provide a system under which every prisoner would be graded according to intellectual abilities and desirable remedies applied as recommended.

Coast Elevator Taken by Ottawa

VANCOUVER (AP) - An Alberta Wheat Pool official said Friday the dominion has refused to accept terms of a new agreement for continued leasing of a huge grain elevator here and the elevator will revert to federal government ownership.

The pool, which has leased the elevator continuously since 1927, now will have only one elevator in operation here and officials said it was a definite blow to Vancouver's carefully built-up wheat exporting trade.

"We are afraid the government's refusal to fall in with our new terms is simply their attempt to force every possible dollar they can out of the trade," the official added. Number two elevator will probably now just stand idle because we do not see how the government can operate it.

Last July another huge federal elevator was reverted back to the dominion from the Alberta Pacific Grain Company and now is idle.

This was shown in the September report of the general secretary of the Alberta Tuberculosis Association, C. Robert Dider.

OTTAWA - Election of Admiral P. W. Nelles, C.B., R.C.N. (Retired), former chief of naval staff, Ottawa, as president of the Canadian Naval Service Benevolent Trust Fund took place at a recent meeting of the directors.

However, it was reported that from the fund, made in 352 urgent cases of distress, were running from $400 to $500 per month, which is in excess of revenue from securities owned by the fund. ## No Great Demand For Car Refunds

There has been no concerted rush for car license refunds with the arrival of colder weather, officials of the provincial secretary's department stated Saturday.

There has been rather a steady flow of requests in each day's mail. Annual rush in the fall for refunds was eliminated some years ago through a change from a straight 70 per cent refund date to a percentage basis, it was explained. Motorists now receive straight refunds based on the unexpired portion of the license. Percentage refunds do not end until Jan. 10.

A motorist now turning in a license for which he paid $10 in April receives a $10 refund at the end of the last month.

If he turned in the same license at the end of April he would obtain a refund of $18.45 and on a graduated scale for each month thereafter.

Hold Celebration At DVA Hospital

An air of festivity pervaded the DVA hospital this morning as patients and staff celebrated the birthday of one of their oldest veterans, David Macfarlane, who became 85 years old on Tuesday, Oct. 8.

The party was arranged by Mrs. A. W. Taylor, chairman of the War Services DVA group hospital visiting organization. A birthday cake was supplied for the occasion by the Overseas Nursing Sisters Association, and a colorful program of entertainment was arranged.

Macfarlane came west in 1985 at the time of the Riel Rebellion. He enlisted with the 96th Canadian Highlanders in Saskatoon at the outbreak of World War I and transferred to the 1st Canadian Machine Gun Battalion shortly after being posted overseas. He served for some time with the army of occupation in Germany, after the armistice.

His many friends in old-time and church circles will be interested in his visit to Edmonton this week of the Rev. J. M. McCormick, FRGS, rural dean of the Bukkley Valley diocese of Canada, with headquarters at Vanderhoof, B.C. He is a guest at the Corona hotel and will be here for two weeks.

KNOWN IN EARLIER days as "Nack the Sky Pilot," he travelled the prairies between 1909 and 1914, having his headquarters first in Edmonton and then later at Winnipeg. He was prominent in military work and church work during all that time.

He was superintendent of the Anglican Church of Canada and had as many as 40 missionaries scattered along the railway camps from coast to coast.

He came to Canada from Belfast, Ireland, in 1909 and to Edmonton in 1910. He says he is "amazed and delighted" with the expansion and growth of Edmonton since he left the city in 1914.

Home School Group Elects Executive

The Almonds Home School Association held its annual meeting and election of officers in the school this week. In a resume of last year's activities the secretary's report pointed out greatly improved lighting and heating facilities in the school. Also that 1,200 hot lunches had been served to school children during the winter months.

A resolution was forwarded to the Edmonton Council of Home and School Associations pointing out the urgent necessity of increased school grants from the provincial government to Edmonton school boards.

Members of the J. H. Richardson Lodge No. 2 LODA will meet at 8:21 118 avenue Monday at 8 p.m.

Varsity Students Planning Parade

It is expected that some 200 members of the Alumni Association will be present for this post-war reunion.

Humanitarian Need Stressed in Speech

Need of a humanitarian trend of thought amongst mankind throughout the world today, was stressed by the Rev. E. G. Turnbull, pastor of the Knox United Church, when he addressed members of the Rotary club at their luncheon meeting in the Macdonald hotel Thursday.

Subject of Mr. Turnbull's address was "The Measure of a Man." Liking many people to the Levite in the story of the good Samaritan, he said that far too many people are looking on the needs of the world from the standpoint of pass on the other side of the road. "It is self duty," he said, "to join hands and seek all avenues of cooperation. If we delay in doing this, we are letting the victim we have so recently won, slip through our hands."

David G. Wood was introduced by Walter F. Wood as a new member.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

CHARITY AT HOME

Charity should be most easily practiced in the home, but it is precisely in the family circle that many fail to honor the second great commandment. It is a tragic fact that those we should most love are those who most often experience the sting and humiliation of our unkindness. Consider how deeply the closeness and loving familiarity of the family is hurt by the taciturnity and unapproachableness of a father, the excessive scolding of a mother, the jealousies and pettinesses of sons or daughters. Do such offenders ever stop to realize how sadly they lack true charity toward those to whom they are kin in the closest family ties?

In some families there are individuals who are hard to live with because they are so touchy or sensitive, so moody or ill-tempered. Sometimes the breeders of family discord are addicted to spiteful, mortifying uses of speech. Sometimes they are glum and light-headed, choosing to shut themselves off from the joyous spirit of family life. Sometimes they have too boisterous a sense of humor or too sense of humor at all. Sometimes they are too tricky, too outwitting, or too demanding.

It is surprising to discover the number of anti-social faults which can make family life a burden rather than a joy.

One of the bases of successful family life is mutual respect and forbearance. This means charity in its broadest and fullest sense—a charity that is gentle, patient, and understanding. It means sharing to the full in one another's joys and tribulations, in uniting ourselves wholeheartedly with other members of the family even while we maintain our own distinct and unique personalities. It means a willingness whenever occasion demands to serve rather than be served, to be the last rather than the first.

See Edmonton to Tokyo Plane Service by 1947

Early in 1947—possibly in February or March—Edmontonians will be able to board a Northwest Air Lines Douglas passenger liner at the city airport and night in Tokyo, 5,000 miles away, just 25 hours later. Or if "Mr. Edmonton" would rather stop at Shanghai he will be there in 30 hours after leaving this city. Manila, at the end of the "line" will be just about 35 hours from Alberta's capital.

THE FOREGOING is the tentative schedule on the American Northwest airline, disclosed by Don J. King, Minneapolis, vice president in charge of Far East operations for Northwest Air Lines.

Mr. King, generally known as Don, arrived in Edmonton Friday to address the annual meeting of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, next Tuesday evening. He will tell Edmontonians then of the company's plans for operating the U.S.-to-Orient air route by way of Edmonton and Alaska.

ACCOMPANIED by his wife and C. M. Brown, superintendent of maintenance on the Orient route, Mr. King flew to Edmonton in a twin-engine Cessna. Formerly chief pilot for Northwest Air Lines, Mr. King had a long period of flying service in the Northwest, Alaska and the Canadian interior, and the critical timing of the Pacific war.

Having spent considerable time in Edmonton during the war, Mr. King is enthusiastic over Alberta's capital city. Said he:

"MYSELF AND ALL others who were with Northwest Air Lines during the war are saying that Edmonton is selected as headquarters for the new air line to the Orient. It is just possible that it may come about, too."

Edmonton will be possibly the most important center of the route. It will be the only stopping place for the Orient-bound planes leaving Edmonton after starting out from New York City. It will be a refueling point and a base for emergency repairs.

Cott Hunter, president and general manager of Northwest Air Lines, also considers Edmonton a most important center on the Orient route. Mr. King revealed that.

"MR. HUNTER foresees the day when Northwest will sell package plane trips to businessmen and sportsmen in New York, Chicago and other large metropolitan areas. He is very anxious to start a service bringing people from the big metropolitan areas of the eastern U.S. and in and out of Edmonton. The package created your own Northwest national parks. Now we believe the air line can make this whole Canadian northwest popular."

I SAW TODAY — Les Puy parking his car near the Post Office.

Bill Kestel on picture being contemplated on pictures he took of the major league ball players.

H. M. E. Evans discussing the new Canadian savings bonds with a friend in front of the C. P. B. building; Eleanor Banister, entering a city department store; George Meese driving north on 101 street; Harold Tucker discussing automobiles with a friend.

Already inclined to operate the route from Minneapolis by way of Edmonton and Alaska to the Orient by the U.S. Aeronautical Board, the company is now awaiting the conclusion of a bilateral agreement between the state departments of Canada and the United States which will settle details as to passenger rights etc.

"WE HAVE applied to our state department for full rights as to delivering mail to the Orient from U.S. centers and from Edmonton. It is likely that a reciprocal agreement will be reached similar to that operative in the case of Trans Canada Air Lines where they operate.

into and out of U.S. territory," Mr. King explained.

The new route will mean a whole lot to Edmonton in a commercial sense, Mr. King said. He thought Edmonton businessmen and citizens in general should get behind the new route and boost.

HE POINTED out that Oriental purchasers of goods would save considerable money in carrying charges by buying articles in Edmonton rather than in New York or other American cities.

Mr. King declared the northwest passage route to the Orient via the Great Circle to be the shortest and most practical of existing routes to the East.

Along the route to Alaska are good air fields constructed during the war. After leaving Anchorage, Alaska, from there on to Tokyo the route will be over the Northwest Pacific for 2,100 miles, following the long Aleutian chain and the Kuriles.

"NOT AT ANY point will our planes be more than an hour or so from a good landing field. Weather in the Aleutians above an altitude of 8,000 feet where our planes will fly is very good. The air is very fresh and the light is bright, said above that level. Compare this with the fog and rain of the San Francisco to Honolulu route where there is a 2,000-mile stretch of ocean, he explained.

"THE PROPOSED schedule, subject to minor revisions, between Edmonton and Manila is:

Edmonton to Anchorage, seven days; Anchorage to Shemya, seven and one half hours; Shemya to Tokyo, seven and one half hours; Tokyo to Manila, seven and one half hours; Shanghai to Manila, seven and one half hours.

FOR THE FIRST year, Douglas DC-4s will be used. In about a year, the company will be placed on the route. Much faster, these planes will reduce the total time by about 20 per cent.

The first survey flight over the whole route is planned for about June 1, 1947, Mr. King disclosed. Pilot, mechanics and other aerial experts will be sent to inspect the route.

Then will follow a series of four or five flying flights.

THE PROVING flights should determine to the governing authorities that the route is practical and safe.

If the aviation governing authorities then give the green signal, Northwest Air Lines will be ready to start passenger service at once. Mr. King said emergency landing and maintenance bases would be required by the company at the time of flight. Cessna, of course, will also be required. Then the company plans to open a downtown office in Edmonton.

WE FOUND out during the war just how wonderfully well Canadian and American could cooperate. We of Northwest Air Lines (see) certainly there will be just as much co-operation in peace," he concluded.

Edmonton to Observe Thanksgiving Monday

Final long week-end before Christmas, Thanksgiving Day, Monday, Oct. 14, will find Edmontonians engaged in a wide variety of activities.

THANKSGIVING services will be held in all city churches on Sunday, when Edmontonians will gather at worship services to give thanks for a plentiful harvest and a successful growing season for grain, vegetables and all farm and garden produce.

Churches will be decorated with sheaves of ripened wheat, huge orange pumpkins, squashes, garden vegetables, autumn flowers and harvest apples to create a seasonal setting for the services. Music appropriate to the day and services on Thanksgiving subjects will make the day a worthwhile occasion for people of all faiths.

ON MONDAY, with stores and business firms closed for the day, Edmontonians will turn to a variety of ways to spend a holiday.

Sports lovers will take advantage of the day to get some duck shooting in at nearby lakes; others will gather on city golf links to get a final game before the season ends; and still others will take to the highways and byways for a hike.

EDMONTON TROOP HEADQUARTERS: Members of the Edmonton Troop No. 23, Boy Scouts of Canada, are building a log cabin at Camp Turner, 10 miles north of Edmonton, near Namsa, in the Sturgeon river valley, a group at work being shown in the above picture.

The boys with their scoutmaster, T.W. Foster, and friends, have been working on the cabin in all weather, beginning last winter and hope to have it completed early next year. The camp will serve as troop headquarters for camping and for various scouting activities in camp and forest craft.

Newly-Formed Reserve Unit Plans First Parade Tuesday

Initial parade for the newly formed 20th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment, RCA, will be held in the Prince of Wales Armoury at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The unit was formed early this year in re-organization of Canada's reserve force. Following the normal policy, the new unit is perpetuating a former reserve force unit, the 20th Field Artillery Brigade. When completed it will be the only major unit to be entirely from the city of Edmonton.

SOME NEW EQUIPMENT HAS ALREADY BEEN provided and provision made for acquiring what has not already been received. Already the regiment has the latest in radar equipment which will be placed in operation within the next two or three weeks. There is also adequate signals and transport equipment on which to commence training. In actual fact, there is more material on which to carry out training than at any time previous in reserve force history.

TO THIS END AN EXTENSIVE RECRUITING campaign will shortly be launched. Vacancies exist in all ranks and trades for all persons either qualified or unqualified. Information may be obtained from the unit's headquarters at the Prince of Wales Armoury.

$48,000 Contributed Pair Evicted From City Hotel

Approaching the final week of the Community Chest drive for $250,000, W. S. Subbuck, campaign manager, announced Saturday that to date $48,000 had been raised. Although this amount shows an increase over the sum raised in the same period last year, it still falls short of the objective set in the present drive.

Mr. Subbuck went on to say that volunteers' efforts to raise a percentage of completed calls as possible before the close of the campaign. The business zone teams, under the chairmanship of Robert Malloy, report their canvases about half complete with generally encouraging results.

Confiscated was not only a teacher, but an accomplished musician, statesman and champion actor.

Basic English Gains Ground

REGINA, Oct. 12 (C.P.). The Indian trapper, who next year may no longer need an interpreter when he bargains with the Indian fur buyer, will owe some gratitude to the Basic English program of the Saskatchewan Department of Education.

This winter at seven communities' the specially populated northern half of Saskatchewan, classes of basic and treaty Indians will gather to learn English, a direct result of the Basic English program.

Miss Guyon, who taught in rural and town schools in southern Saskatchewan before taking over the Basic English directorate in 1944, has nothing of the subject before her.

THIS SUMMER she helped teach the first class of 20 Basic English students in Canada at a special four-week course here.

The teachers have gone back to their schools throughout the province and many are teaching classes in Basic English.

The first experiment in Basic English was conducted last winter at Wilkie, Sask., 25 miles southeast of Regina.

There, centre of a large Métis settlement, 15 adults and 15 children, a few of whom spoke English, enthusiastically took the course which was combined with a study of Citizenship provided by the Canadian Citizenship branch of the secretary of state's department.

Miss Guyon, in charge of administrative details of the scheme, has travelled to several parts of the province, equipping the necessity of further teachers and the demand for the course.

THE 26-YEAR-OLD director believes there are more teachers equipped to teach Basic English than those who look to the course for teachers this summer.

She says that in the past, where they have positions in districts where there are no "new Canadian" or Indians.

In the class at Regina last winter, Miss Guyon, in charge of administrative details of the scheme, has travelled to several parts of the province, equipping the necessity of further teachers and the demand for the course.

Starting Oct. 15, Basic will be held at all 100 Basic English centres.

Forty-four classes complete the winter course.

Miss Guyon points up the citizenship basis of the course as well as the advantage of being able to converse with one's neighbor.

She says, "In order to be a world citizen you have to start on a community level."

Just a little confidential information the boss has his back turned.

If you're a would-be Jane Arden looking for a job, now is the time to head the editor of your hometown newspaper in his den—while he is still reminiscing on the excellent work of the Canadian newspapermen during the war.

When woman first parked her car in a cop's den, she was the managing editor reasoned that she was not a cop, but she had been in the den and would as soon as she was.

The labor shortage forced him to hire her and have his theory disproved. A Canadian Press survey reveals that Canadian newspapermen are retaining the skilled personnel they employed during the war.

In British Columbia, the Trail Times and Nelson News, with circulation of 3,000 and 6,000 respectively, have women holding down nearly 50 per cent of the editorial jobs. During the war they employed more women than men.

In Ontario, the Toronto Press, with circulation of 9,000, and the North Bay Nugget, with 7,500, have tripled the number of women they employed in the pre-war era.

It is true a few women have dropped out of the ranks, but chiefly because they either married or found higher-paying jobs in advertising or public work.

AS FOR HIRING a married woman, an most editors say they don't want a hot just as long as she turns out good copy.

On a large number of Canadian papers women make from 15 to 20 per cent less than men doing similar jobs. On small papers a job report starting out has less to do with content often with less than $15 a week. It's a lucky she may climb to $25.

However, on the bigger papers, in such cities as Toronto and Montreal, a good woman reporter may earn as much as $18.00 to $20.00 a year.

In accordance with their growth in importance the social and women's departments are claiming an increasing number of women writers.

The average paper with a circulation of 30,000 and more has any

Food Experts Advise Farmers To Cut Beef Production Now

By H. R. Hardy
OTTAWA.—Because the western farmer is producing a beef grown rather than a beef producer and because Canada's beef market is complete successfully in the world market, the British market with Argentina, he would be well advised to begin to taper off his beef production.

This is the opinion of food experts of the parliament who point out that while Canada is committed to the British market for a total of 120,000,000 pounds of beef for the next two years, this market is not likely to fall off or even diminish by 1949.

Because cattle growers cannot get into and out of production as easily and as quickly as hog growers, if they are to begin to taper off their beef production, they must begin to do so now.

May Cuts Off
This could cut Canada's almost 100,000 head of cattle almost in half.

Why Grow Old?

Begin your school year secure in the knowledge that you are well-grounded from head to toe. Actress Suzi Cranall can concentrate on lecture notes, having already tended to her grooming.

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

By this time thousands of young women have enrolled in various colleges. It is the first college experience for some of them and presents a time of adjustment. I remember once hearing a noted educator say that he had seen students so homesick that they actually ran a temperature. This was some time ago and today the average girl has had so much independence that she is less likely to fall heir to this malady.

NEVERTHELESS there are a few things she might remember, namely, to be kind and understanding, warm and friendly, and above all, natural. There is no synthetic charm which can take the place of natural good humor and kindness. She should also remember that good grooming is the most important factor of attractiveness. It is better to be underdressed than overdone, and elegance depends on suitability rather than on elaborate finery.

The time has come when she should take care of her hair, which land and body lotions, deodorants and well-manicured nails will enhance that shining, clean-cut beauty of youth. Soap and water are usually the best treatment for the college girl's complexion because few young women of this age have dry skin difficulty.

SHE PASSES up her natural heritage of youth if she goes in for cosmetics and clothes that are too extreme. Older women may need these but she does not.

She will receive great benefit in health and spirit if she indulges in outdoor sports. Proven in these will aid to her vitality and her popularity.

Here's to a happy year for her, wherever she is!

Dorothy Dix Says —

Why is it that we regard age as so much more of a calamity for women than it is for men? We accord men the privilege of growing old and when they lose their boyish figures, and acquire tummies, and their hair begins to redden, we get stiff in the joints, we neither pity them, nor look upon them with the eye of scorn. On the contrary, if the years have polished up their wit and deepened their intelligence, we admire them more in their sixties than we did in their twenties.

BUT WHEN a woman grows old, we treat her as if she had committed a crime and as if losing her complexion was as much of a disaster to her reputation as it is to a man's. As if every birthday was an indication that we should cover up with silence, since the unfortunate creature couldn't help it. So we "pity" her and sigh as we say what a pretty girl she used to be, and how sadly she has faded, and we are not surprised when we hear that her husband is getting a divorce from her because she has gotten old.

And the tragedy of the whole thing is that women spoil what should be the best years of their lives trying to fight off age, which just as often as not is their friend instead of their enemy. For if the years rob her of her complexion, she loses her beauty, but she gains wisdom, and wisdom is only skin deep, for her good looks, they just as often become imperishable charms on her homely sister. All of us have seen the miracle girl, we have seen a fat, lumpy girl, or one who was overgrown and awkward shape down into symmetry and grace and acquire a poise that gives her a queenly presence.

We have seen dumb girls turn into brilliant and charming elderly women who made any Miss America seem a stodge. And we have seen old women who were more beautiful than any girl because their souls shone through their faces like a lamp in an alabaster vase.

The happiest time of a woman's life, when she is old and does not care who knows it.

BLACK MARKET IN BIBLES
JOHANNESBURG — (CP)—A black market in bibles is reported in many large South African towns. Volumes are being sold for five times their pre-war price with African editions fetching even higher prices. The cheap pocket edition supplied to schools for scripture lessons is unavailable in the quantities the schools require.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRID

There is great confusion in the minds of parents as to how much they dare encourage their children to defend themselves without making tag battles out of them.

Mrs. A. P.'s letter illustrates one of these points well. "I have two small children," she writes, "and I was taught by my parents to be good and kind and I treated them the way I wanted them to treat me. I want my own children to be the same and to have enough faith in people so that they won't suspect everyone with whom they come in contact."

"I have a neighbor who thinks differently. He is teaching his small son to carry a chip on his shoulder and always be ready when someone crosses him. The father brags about his own physical strength and encourages his baby to yell loudly and to hit and punch to the mother as well as to other children who receive bloody noses from him."

"This delights the father, who feels that the child is learning to take care of himself. The mother knows that other children will be afraid of her boy, but she also knows he will be left alone. What do you think?"

Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

As no trump you cannot blame a fellow for opening the fourth best of his longest and strongest suit, especially a seven-card suit such as East held in today's hand, but it proved disastrous against El Jaye in a recent game in New York.

The bidding was rather peculiar because nobody pre-empted with the six and seven-card suit. South thought that the hands were of normal distribution, but El Jaye decided against a preemptive bid and correctly went to three-no-trump.

East had opened a heart, there was nothing to prevent declarer from taking at least eleven tricks.

Here you are fourteen, a sophomore in high school, and a boy has fallen for you. You know your technique has earned you a reputation. The girl who is so many things to you. And you put it merrily on your way. . . .

Eleanor will have none of you, Eleanor's different somehow. . . . You don't feel a bit like flirting with her. . . . You take her very seriously. . . . Eleanor will not tolerate you. Oh, she goes out with you occasionally, but she turns from more dates with you than she accepts. And when she's with you, she makes you sweat.

But don't bother with her. If you don't want to reform, if your torturing interest in Eleanor is just because you want to fall for all the other girls have, if her indifference makes you feel that you're slipping. . . . And your music is falling. If you want Eleanor, just let her see you with her. . . . don't bother. She knows as much about tricks as you do. . . . and can probably show you a few new ones.

Britain Releases Jailed Paratroops

By Frank Swanson
LONDON.—The British government's decision to release paratroops on 24 paratroops convicted of mutiny in Malaya may herald far-reaching changes in the traditionally unchangeable body of military law.

While M.P.'s on both sides of the house Thursday applauded the announcement by war secretary Fred Bellenger that the convicted paratroops are to be freed, they were united in feeling modifications of army law contained in the manual of military law are long overdue, particularly in regard to appeal machinery.

One group of M.P.'s, mainly government supporters, has decided to press the war office to set up a formal court of appeal for military cases. Members of which would be civilian judges. Soldiers condemned by courts martial would have the right to appeal to this court instead of their more limited right of petition to higher military authorities. Under present military law, which has not altered basically since the days of the Duke of Wellington, the only appeal by a convicted soldier is by a written petition in which he may claim the finding or sentence is "unjust." But the soldier has no further right to be heard.

The chief safeguard of rights of an accused soldier lies with a reviewing officer, usually an officer with legal training or experience, whose job it is to check proceedings and decisions and advise the officer whose job it is to confirm sentence whether to withhold confirmation or not.

It is at this point the Malaya paratroops' case appears to have become engaged, with the reviewing officer on the scene having passed the sentence as fair, while war office legal officers apparently found sufficient irregularities to warrant quashing all convictions, even against known instigators of mutiny. The paratroops' case is first in annual of British military law where the public outcry from all corners of the nation forced the government to investigate, which led eventually to the quashing of sentences on the grounds of legal irregularities.

Saskatchewan Near Tax Pact

By Richard Sanborn
OTTAWA.—Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan said Thursday that the federal government's last offer in regard to a tax agreement with his province was acceptable, provided Saskatchewan first get some firm understanding in regard to the $20,000,000 debt and seed grain debt it owes Ottawa.

Mr. Douglas and Provincial Treasurer Clarence Fries said they were confident that an agreement would be reached on the debt, and that it would be slashed considerably. They are asking the dominion to recognize a large part of the $20,000,000 debt as a federal responsibility, and to cancel it entirely. Further, they want the remainder of the debt spread over a period of years without interest. Unless Saskatchewan succeeds in getting some understanding and extra profits tax, the dominion could—as it did once before—leave the province to pay its debts before it gets its subsidy. The federal government said that in 1945, when the dominion seed grain debt was owing.

Then, of course, with Saskatchewan's debt exceeding to get about $23,000,000 annually as its "payment" for services of taxing government, it might get a lot less if Ottawa decided to hold a firm line on payment on the debt. Saskatchewan intends to make sure that won't happen.

Mr. Douglas said the federal government now appeared to recognize about $5,000,000 of the $20,000,000 debt as direct relief. Other provinces also owe the dominion government bills payable on demand, but Saskatchewan at $22,000,000 leads the parade. Manitoba owes about $24,000,000, Alberta $20,000,000 and British Columbia $18,000,000 in relief bills.

28 Kept Steering Government Mail

OTTAWA, (CP).—Many times when John Q. Public sits down to write a letter to the government, the boys of 42 Bennett street in Ottawa get a headache.

That's because John Q. usually doesn't address his government mail correctly and the boys at No. 42, the Ottawa post office, have to take his memories and their talents to make sure the letter reaches the right official in the right department.

They get a lot of mail for the government in the big gray-stone building, so much that they have a special division with a staff of 28 who do nothing but sort out letters and parcels for government departments.

The run-of-the-mill stuff, from outside government branches, companies and other people who deal regularly with the administration, gets to its proper place in proper order. It's the little guy's letter, his first stab at governmental correspondence who produces the gray hairs around the division.

Likely as not, he'll simply address his letter to "The Government, Ottawa" and some, with far greater ambitions, have sent letters to "The King" or "The Queen" or "The Royal Highness."

E. B. Duggan, brick district director of postal services in Ottawa, estimates the division handles from 10,000 to 20,000 pieces of government mail a day. Official mail going out from Ottawa through the post office runs about 20,000,000 pieces a month, compared with 10,000,000 before the war and nearly 20,000,000 in 1942. In peak years, much of the mail is made up in ciphers covering pensions, family allowances and war gratuities.

Teenie Weenie Luck

THE Teenie Weenies heat their houses with tiny stoves. These stoves burn wood and it takes a lot of wood to keep the little people warm during the winter. The men pick up all the small pieces of wood they find and carry them in the Teenie Weenie cart to the village. Lead pencils, burned matches, paint brush handles and wooden clothespins make fairly good firewood, for these objects are not too big for such little folks to handle. Many tree limbs can be used, but most of these are too big to be cut into firewood, for the Teenie Weenies' large crosscut saw is only two and a half inches long, and it will not cut through wood more than an inch thick. When the Teenie Weenies find a limb of this size they cut it into logs about three inches long and then hire a team of mice to pull the logs into the Teenie Weenie village, where the logs are sawed into pieces about half an inch long. These pieces are then split with Teenie Weenie axes into suitable size for the Teenie Weenie stoves and stored in the woodhouse. This is an old syrup tin the little people scrubbed and dried.

Burned matches and wooden safety match boxes make good kindling for starting fires, but the best stove wood is hard wood like birch, maple, oak or beechwood. Old pencils make fairly good wood for the cook stove, but they are usually made of cedar wood. They burn fast and make a hot fire, but they do not last long. The Teenie Weenies are very happy when they find a hardwood limb that is not too big for them to handle, and if a limb falls from a tree near the village the little folks are very fortunate for that saves them the hard task of dragging the logs up to the Teenie Weenie woodhouse.

The TEENIE WEEENIES

The little men had gathered every tiny twig near their village that could be used for firewood, and they were planning a trip to the big woods in search of fuel when they had a great supply left right on their tiny doorstep. It was a birchwood limb, and it was big enough to keep the little men busy for several days cutting it up. The limb blew off a big tree near the village, and it landed right on top of the shoe house. It knocked down the kitchen chimney, bent the water spout and upset the rainwater thimble, but the Teenie Weenies didn't mind that when such a generous supply of firewood had been dumped at their very door.

The men set to work with their tiny axes and crosscut saw, and in a few days they stored away over 48 Teenie Weenie cords of fine hardwood to keep the little folks saug and warm.
